HISTORICAL SKETCH of the APPRENTICES' LIBRARY COMPANY

THE APPRENTICES' LIBRARY was founded February 24th, 1820. When a public meeting was held in Carpenter's Hall for that purpose, The Library of 1500 books found its first home in an upper room on the south side of Chestnut street above Third, from which it was removed to Carpenter's Hall, thence to Carpenter (now Ranstead) street below Seventh, afterwards to the old Mint building, on Seventh above Market, and in 1841, to the Free Quakers' Meeting House, at Fifth and Arch streets. After remaining fifty-six years in that location, the westward growth of the city rendered another change necessary, and the present convenient and commodious building, on Broad above Spring Garden street, was secured in 1897.

The year 1842 also marked the opening of a separate department for girls, who had previously not been admitted to the advantages of the Library. Thirty years later the Library was opened to all who would comply with its regulations, and in 1882 the separate departments for boys and girls were combined. Nine years later, in 1891, the Library was thoroughly reorganized on a modern basis, and since that date has kept abreast of the latest improvements in library work.

TO THE
APPRENTICES' LIBRARY COMPANY

The Managers of the Apprentices' Library Company submit the following Report of the operations of the Library during the year ending the 31st of March, 1914.

The circulation for the past year has been 70,984 with a fiction average of 50 per cent. This includes the Children's Room where the circulation was 30,045 with a fiction percentage of 35 per cent. The decrease in the circulation is due, as was explained last year, to the decrease in the income available for the purchase of books, owing to the necessity for the re-investment of funds at a lower rate of interest. The Reference Library, however, shows an increase of over 35 per cent. in its use, owing largely to the fact that the assistant Librarians are trained in this work, and are able to afford assistance to readers which the statistics show is much appreciated. There has also been a marked increase in the use of the Reading Room resulting from the better placing of the periodicals, and also from the care which has been taken to eliminate as far as possible those who sought to use the room as a lounging place rather than for reading.

A series of Travel stories given once a week in the Children's Room, and illustrated by stereopticon slides loaned by the Bureau of Education, has proved exceedingly popular as well as instructive. The teachers in the Harrison School have been much interested in this work, the principal Miss Allen, and others, making valuable suggestions as to topics, obtaining the appropriate slides, and bringing the children from school to the Library for the Story Hour. During Clean Up Week, Mrs. Pierce, from the Street Cleaning and Highway Improvement Bureau, gave a talk illustrated with lantern slides to 178 children.

There has been, as usual, a large attendance of boys from the Central High School, the increase in the Reference Library already referred to arising from a large use of the Reference Library by the pupils of that school as well as of the William Penn High School, the Girls' Normal School and the Girls' High School.

Miss Mildred Subers has resigned as Children's Librarian, and Miss Laura E. Hanson as First Assistant and Cataloger. Both of these resignations, which will take effect May first, have been of too recent date to permit of the selection of successors at the time of making this report.

Acknowledgment is made of a gift of books by Mr. John L. Smith, a member of the Board of Managers.

We again wish to thank the Librarian, Miss Bache, for the very efficient manner in which she has conducted the Library, and for the success which has attended her efforts to maintain the Library's very high standard of usefulness.

On behalf of the Board.

Wm. M. COATES, Chairman.
